Profile

EVA JAKOBSON VAAGLAND

Managing director of the Norwegian Safety Forum since 2009.

NORWEGIAN SAFETY FORUM is a national centre designed to provide information on injury prevention and safety promotion, and to promote co-operation between business and public sector and non-governmental organizations. NSF functions as a national centre for Safe Communities in Norway and as an International Safe Community Support Centre. The Forum is financed by membership fees, the Ministry of Health and the Norwegian Association Insurance Companies.

Eva Jakobson Vaagland, with a master in Philosophy and Education from the Stockholm University has lived and worked in Norway for the past 25 years.

She has solid experience from heading projects, national and Nordic programs involving local activities and national policies, practitioners and experts doing advocacy work and lobbying on national and international level. She has worked with politicians, NGOs, public sector and private enterprise as well as with researchers and media on cultural programs, public education, environmental issues, Nordic co-operation, safety promotion and injury prevention.

Eva J Vaagland is interested in networking and interaction between different sectors and professions and values the good results that can be gained when volunteers, NGOs, experts and public sector join forces and work together to reach a set goal. She firmly believes that cooperation between different professions based on confidence, commitment and mutual respect gives the best results.
